MISSISSIPPI

PREFACE

"Mississippi has always been a bewitched and tragic ground, yet it's also a land of heroism and nobility;
a place which has honored those of us of all our races who possess the courage and the imagination of the resources given us on this haunted terrain. I love Mississippi, and I hope the best of it will endure."

WILLIE MORRIS
Interviewed 1986

As Willie Morris suggests, Mississippi is a complex, multifaceted state, shaped at once by tradition and tragedy, honor and energy. We appreciate where we've come from, and we have learned valuable, sometimes difficult, lessons. At the same time, we have a definite sense of direction, a vision of where we're going, and a sure understanding of what it takes to get there.

This statistical register is an accounting of where we are as a state at a certain point in time: 1988-1992. It is a compendium of facts, a collection of useful information about state and local government, a directory of public officials and agencies, and a record of election results. But it is also a reflection of where we've been and where we're headed. It celebrates the pride that we share in the accomplishments of our citizens of all cultures and circumstances. And it tells a story of a people on the move into the 21st Century with a determination to improve our economic well-being through enhanced public education for our children.

Most of all, the Blue Book enables us to take stock of our resources, to count our blessings, and to remind ourselves of the challenges that lie ahead. It is with this sense of honor of the past, understanding of the present, and commitment to the future that we dedicate this publication.

INTRODUCTION

Mississippi is widely known by two nicknames: the Magnolia State, referring to Mississippi's abundant natural beauty, and the Hospitality State, accurately describing the warm, welcoming nature of Mississippi's people. These traditional expressions, however, reflect only two facets of the state's multidimensional personality.

In the face of population growth, industrial development, and technological advancement, Mississippians maintain a fiercely protective attitude toward their rich traditions of family, home, and respect for the land and its resources. At the same time, a significant and growing segment of Mississippi's population acknowledges that other traditions have resulted in pain rather than pride.

Divisive attitudes rooted in race, economic status, and sectionalism have erected a formidable barricade between the people of Mississippi and the prosperity which could be theirs. Today, however, new attitudes, new energies, and new traditions are breaching that barrier. Mississippi is carrying its traditions — the most valuable of the old and the most challenging of the new — across the threshold of tomorrow.

THE HUMAN FACTOR

The pioneers who first ventured into the Mississippi wilderness brought with them a tradition which continues to prove itself valuable in today's high-tech industrial society — the unquenchable determination of Mississippi's people.

Natural resources, geographic advantages, and transportation facilities are all important elements which have helped persuade hundreds of American and international businesses to undertake research, manufacturing, processing, and distribution operations in Mississippi. For many visionary corporate leaders, however, the truly decisive factors have been a widespread sense of individual responsibility, pride, and craftsmanship, and the willingness to exchange a day's work for a day's pay.

These long-established human qualities which distinguish Mississippi's highly motivated work force are difficult to measure in any quantitative way, but studies indicate that Mississippi workers rank among America's finest in dedication, efficiency, and productivity.

THE ASCENDANCY OF IDEAS

In Mississippi, as in other states, today's economy is becoming less a product of labor and more a marketplace of ideas. Many career fields which will be commonplace for the next generation of workers do not currently exist. Successful competition for the careers of tomorrow requires quality education today. In Mississippi, growing numbers of state officials, local leaders, and private citizens are coming to realize that the state's system of public education has received too little attention for too long.

To correct the situation, Mississippi has embarked upon a series of fundamental improvements in its educational program which represent a substantial investment in the future of the state and its people. In the 1988 legislative session, teacher pay was elevated to the Southeastern average. The state's per-pupil textbook appropriation has more than tripled. Teacher certification standards have been stiffened, and high school graduation requirements have been reinforced. State-supported kindergartens have been instituted, mandatory attendance has been extended, and no pass/no play guidelines have been implemented.

Even in the face of these improvements, however, 10,000 students continue to drop out of Mississippi schools each year, and nearly 20 percent of the state's adult population can neither read nor write. Therefore, although undeniable progress has been made, much work remains to be done before Mississippi can claim the level of educational quality that its children deserve. Still, public support for continued advancement in the schools provides eloquent testimony to Mississippi's increasing commitment to excellence in public education. And this commitment continues beyond high school.

One of America's most extensive networks of two-year community colleges offers academic courses along with vocational and technical training. Eight state-supported universities with 13 branch campuses across the state administer a full range of undergraduate and graduate programs. A college education lies within reach of every aspiring student in Mississippi.

A State of Celebration

Mississippians are, indeed, hardworking people, dedicated to personal achievement and to building better lives for themselves and their families. But when the work is done, nobody loves a celebration more than the people of Mississippi.

The state's population proudly represents a dizzying array of ethnic and cultural backgrounds, and they tap all their resources of heritage and tradition to create an ongoing series of one-of-a-kind festivals and memorable events:

- Neshoba County Fair
- Dixie National Western Festival
- Jubilee! JAM, the Jackson arts and music festival
- Faulkner Festival and Conference at Oxford
- Chimneyville Crafts Festival
- Delta Blues Festival
- Choctaw Indian Fair.

Mississippians pay tribute to their colorful history through antebellum pilgrimages in Natchez and Holly Springs, the Blessing of the Fleet on the Gulf Coast, the Vicksburg Military Park, and the Grand Village of the Natchez Indians. The state offers an opportunity to travel back beyond history itself at Flora's Petrified Forest and forward to the stars at the Davis Planetarium in Jackson.

Mississippi occupies a distinguished plateau in the arts through the contributions of writers such as William Faulkner, Eudora Welty, Richard Wright, and Tennessee Williams; musicians from Leontyne Price and B.B. King to Elvis Presley and Charley Pride; and actors of the stature of James Earl Jones and Oprah Winfrey. The people of Mississippi sustain this creative legacy through events of worldwide significance such as the International Ballet Competition and through theatre and dance groups, orchestras, operas, and arts festivals in communities large and small in every corner of the state.

Mississippi also inherits another legacy, thanks to Walter Payton, Archie Manning, Calvin Smith, Will Clark, Larry Myricks, and other star athletes. Sports events — professional and amateur, spectator and participatory — abound across the state, along with outdoor recreation of every sort in fields and forests, on lakes and streams, in the air and on the sea.

AN EXPANDING ECONOMIC FOUNDATION

For a little more than one hundred years, from shortly after the state's founding through the Great Depression, cotton was the undisputed king of Mississippi's largely agrarian economy. Over the last half-century, however, Mississippi has progressively deepened its commitment to diversification by balancing agricultural output with increased industrial activity.

Today, agriculture continues as a major segment of the state's economy. Soybeans have supplanted cotton as the largest crop — although Mississippi still ranks second only to Texas in cotton production — and the state's farmlands yield important harvests of corn, peanuts, pecans, rice, sugarcane, sweet potatoes, and hay, as well as poultry and eggs. In the last decade, aquaculture has rapidly risen to significance, establishing Mississippi as the world's leading producer of pond-raised catfish.

Since 1965, however, more Mississippians have been employed in manufacturing than in farming. Combining its natural and human resources with an innovative program of economic incentives, the state is attracting a broader spectrum of business, industrial, and technological operations.

NATURE'S ABUNDANCE

The beauty and the blessings of nature are spread border to border across the Mississippi landscape — from the seafood-rich fishing waters on the Gulf Coast to the deep fertility of the Delta soil...from the ancient forests and petroleum deposits of the southwestern Heartland to the green, growing vistas of the central Plains and the casually rolling Hills in the state's northeastern corner.

In each of these regions, native resources are fueling traditional operations as well as enterprises that are new to the state's economic mix:

- agriculture and food processing
- catfish farming
- poultry and egg production and processing
- cattle and hog farming
- timber production
- paper milling
- furniture manufacturing
- textile production
- commercial fishing
- seafood processing
- oil and natural gas production
- coal and lignite mining.

The lands and waters of Mississippi are abundant suppliers of food, fiber, and minerals, providing a stable base for the state's growing economy.

GATEWAY TO THE WORLD

Mississippi's wealth of resources is enhanced by its strategic location at the center of the Sunbelt. Interstate Highways 55 and 20 intersect at the heart of the state, establishing Mississippi as a crossroads between Dallas and Atlanta, between Memphis and New Orleans. In fact, 12 major American markets lie within a 500-mile radius of the state's capital city.

The highway transportation system in Mississippi is amplified by a network of rail, air, and water facilities. Passenger and freight trains crisscross the state, while commercial passenger and cargo flights arrive and depart daily at airports large and small. And, with year-round, ice-free ports on the Mississippi River to the west, the Tennessee-Tombigbee Waterway to the east, and the Gulf of Mexico to the south, Mississippi offers access to two-thirds of United States markets as well as Mexico, Central and South America, and the rest of the world.

This market accessibility has established Mississippi as an attractive base for companies working in a variety of fields:

- automobile parts
- aircraft components
- marine equipment
- musical instruments and amplification
- transportation and distribution
- shipbuilding
- chemicals
- fertilizers
- printing
- clothing
- heavy machinery

National and international businesses are finding that the easy reach from Mississippi to many important markets can maximize the efficiency of their distribution efforts.

TECHNOLOGICAL LANDMARKS

For a state which is often perceived as rural and agricultural, Mississippi scientists, physicians, researchers, engineers, and entrepreneurs have recorded a number of remarkable accomplishments in many exacting technical disciplines:

- The world's first human lung and heart transplants were accomplished at the University of Mississippi Medical Center.
- The Mississippi Methodist Rehabilitation Center in Jackson houses a state-of-the-art surgical suite which is matched by only one other such facility in the western hemisphere.
- The Space Shuttle's main engines are test-fired at the Stennis Space Center in Hancock County, and NASA is planning a second Mississippi facility at Yellow Creek near Iuka.

- At Vicksburg, the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers Waterways Experiment Station is the world's largest hydraulic research laboratory.
- Peavey Electronics in Meridian leads the world in the manufacture of musical amplification equipment.
- Jackson is headquarters for Vickers Aerospace, Marine, Defense, where components are designed and manufactured for virtually every aircraft flown in the free world.
- At Pascagoula, the Ingalls Division of Litton Industries uses leading-edge construction techniques to build the U.S. Navy's most sophisticated ships.

And technological breakthroughs for tomorrow are being developed today at eight research centers in the state, where programs are underway in such esoteric fields as acoustics, polymer science, electricity, microelectronics, hydrodynamics, and oceanography.

A NEW ENTHUSIASM

The road Mississippi is taking toward statewide economic prosperity and personal fulfillment for all its people is a long and difficult one. Moreover, the state bears a fearful burden on its journey, in the form of a legacy of racial separation and oppression which has effectively excluded nearly half of Mississippi's people from participation in its progress for the past 150 years.

Recent years, however, have seen tangible evidence of a fundamental realignment of the state's priorities. In 1987, Mississippians elected Ray Mabus as the youngest governor in America. He and a corps of other office-holders, both black and white, at every level of government, have brought a creative and challenging enthusiasm to state leadership. But this new enthusiasm did not originate in the statehouse and city halls. It grew up from the grass roots, from the citizens of Mississippi, from their insistence on a brighter future for themselves, for their families, and for the state they love.

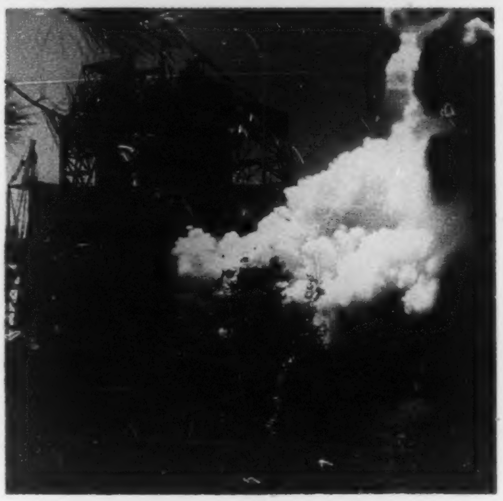
Mississippi does not pretend that polarizing and paralyzing attitudes have been erased, that injustice has become a relic of history, or that regional jealousies and class distinctions have disappeared. By the same token, however, Mississippi does not have to pretend that the times are changing...for the better. Mississippians have learned that joining the American mainstream means joining hands in a common salute to a common heritage, in a universal celebration of the state's many real blessings and achievements, and in a concerted effort to build tomorrow's Mississippi.

EUROPEAN ADVENTURERS

For centuries, the region now known as Mississippi was the unchallenged domain of nations called Choctaw, Chickasaw, Natchez, and Yazoo, along with others whose names have been lost to history. In 1540, Spanish conquistadors led by Hernando DeSoto ventured onto Mississippi soil in their pursuit of plunder. By May of 1541, they had journeyed as far as the Mississippi River.

Almost 150 years later, Robert Cavelier, Sieur de La Salle, brought a band of explorers from France to the New World. After reaching Mississippi in March 1682, La Salle laid claim to the entire Mississippi Valley on behalf of the King of France and proceeded south down the great river, encountering the Natchez and Coron Tribes in the southwest corner of the state along the way.

The first permanent European settlement in the Mississippi region was established on the Coast of the Gulf of Mexico. Pierre le Moyne, Sieur d'Iberville, entered the Gulf in 1699 and proceeded westward along the Alabama and Mississippi coasts. He finally put ashore at Biloxi Bay and set up a colony of settlers near present-day Ocean Springs.



One member of that 1699 expedition was d'Iberville's brother, Jean Baptiste le Moyne, Sieur de Bienville. In 1716, Bienville returned to Mississippi and proceeded up the Mississippi River to Natchez. There he founded an outpost named Fort Rosalie. Bienville was later appointed governor of French Louisiana, including the area which was to become the Mississippi Territory.

UNDER MANY FLAGS

In 1763, as a result of the French and Indian War, Louisiana was divided between Spain and England. The Spanish assumed control of New Orleans and all territory west of the Mississippi. England took the remaining land east of the river, including much of what is now Mississippi, and called it British West Florida.

Spain took over West Florida in 1779, in the midst of the American Revolution. Then, under the 1795 treaty of San Lorenzo, Spain surrendered its territory north of the 31st parallel to the United States. Later, in 1798, the Spanish evacuated Natchez, which became the capital city of the newly established Mississippi Territory. Winthrop Sargent was appointed the first territorial governor.

At the turn of the 19th century, the Mississippi Territory was bordered on the west by the Mississippi River and on the east by the Chattahoochee River. The northern boundary was a line running east from the mouth of the Yazoo River, and the 31st parallel defined the southern border. Congress extended the Territory northward to the Tennessee line in 1804, and subsequently, in 1817, divided the area into the territories of Mississippi and Alabama.

On December 10, 1817, Mississippi was admitted to the union as the 20th state. David Holmes, who had been serving as territorial governor since 1809, became the first governor of the state, and the territorial capital, Natchez, continued as the state capital on a temporary basis. After several relocations, the capital city found a permanent home in 1822. The Mississippi Legislature designated a site known as LeFleur's Bluff which overlooked the Pearl River in the center of the state. The city was renamed "Jackson" in honor of General Andrew Jackson.

THE COTTON KINGDOM

An improved Mexican variety of cotton was introduced into Mississippi in 1820 and quickly took its place as the state's primary crop. By the 1830s, high cotton prices, cheap land prices, and easy credit ignited an economic explosion in Mississippi. The plantation system became firmly entrenched as 10,000 slaves per year were imported into the area. At the same time, the majority of Mississippi's Indian population was removed to Oklahoma.

Mississippi's economy slowed with the panic of 1837, but renewed agricultural development of the Yazoo-Mississippi Delta ushered in the "Golden Age of the Cotton Kingdom" in the 1850s. Land values soared to as much as $18 an acre, and Mississippi luxuriated in its position as one of the wealthiest areas of the nation until January 9, 1861, when it became the second state to secede from the union.

THE WAGES OF WAR

"The Republic of Mississippi" existed independently for just under three months, but on March 29, 1861, Mississippi ratified the constitution of the Confederate States of America. Jefferson Davis, a Mississippian with a notable career in service to the federal government, was elected President of the Confederacy.

In what was, perhaps, the most decisive action of the Civil War, the Mississippi River city of Vicksburg surrendered to the forces of General

U. S. Grant on July 4, 1863, after a devastating 47-day siege. The fall of Vicksburg opened the river to the Gulf of Mexico, cutting the Confederacy in two and sealing its fate. Over the course of the war, 78,000 Mississippi soldiers fought in the Confederate Army. More than 59,000 were killed or wounded. Many major battles were conducted within Mississippi, decimating the state's wealth and resources. At long last, the slaves were free. But the lavish plantation lifestyle that slavery had made possible lay in ruins, and the future held little promise.

THE STRUGGLES OF RECONSTRUCTION

The Reconstruction era following the war was a bitter time. Taxes were raised far above pre-war levels, and reports of corruption in state government were widespread. Deep political division over the status of freed slaves led to brutal intimidation of black voters by the Ku Klux Klan, and violent riots erupted in Meridian, Vicksburg, and Clinton. In spite of the atmosphere of upheaval, there were significant achievements during Reconstruction, and worthy leaders did come forward to help guide the state through the painful period. The Constitution of 1868, for example, created Mississippi's first statewide system of state-supported public schools, although the legislature allowed the local districts to establish separate schools for whites and blacks. Governor James L. Alcorn (1870–71), was one of the first influential Mississippians to call for sectional reconciliation and full civil rights for freed slaves.

Capable black leaders also emerged during Reconstruction. Hiram Rhodes Revels, a North Carolina-born minister and teacher who journeyed to Mississippi during the war, became the first black ever to sit in the U.S. Senate in 1870. A second black Senator from Mississippi, Blanche K. Bruce, was widely respected by his colleagues from both parties during his 1875–81 Senate term, and he was suggested for a position in President Garfield's cabinet. John R. Lynch, born a slave near Natchez in 1847, was elected to the state Legislature at the age of 22 and became Speaker of the House three years later. He went on to be elected twice to the U.S. Congress, serve with distinction in the Spanish-American War, and practice law. Lynch died in 1939 and is buried in Arlington National Cemetery.

READMITTANCE, RECOVERY, AND THE TIMBER BOOM

After its return to the Union in 1870, Mississippi continued to rely on cotton as the basis of its shattered economy. Fertile land remained in abundant supply, but capital was almost nonexistent. Many small farms were foreclosed, and unemployment among poor whites as well as former slaves reached epidemic proportions. The vanquished slavery system was replaced by a new feudalism called sharecropping, under which both black and white laborers worked the land for the property owners in return for a portion of the yield.

Sharecroppers were often bound to the landowners by debt, and the bleakness of their daily lives was little different from what the slaves had known. Small farmers fared only slightly better. They were generally in debt at high rates of interest to the merchants from whom they bought seed, fertilizer, tools and equipment. And if their debt should overwhelm them, they could easily find themselves reduced to sharecropping on what had once been their own land.

Recovery from the war-induced depression was a slow and painful process. With the 1870s, however, came the construction of railroads and new industry, and out-of-state speculators discovered Mississippi's forestry resources in the 1880s. Millions of acres of pine and hardwoods represented huge profits for strategic investors who expanded railroad lines in the state and created new industries based on cutting and shipping timber to markets in the north. Between 1904 and 1915, however, as Mississippi became the third largest timber-producing state in America, the timber companies were already depleting the source of their wealth through undisciplined harvesting. By the 1920s, the virgin forests of Mississippi had been exhausted.

A New Century Brings New Problems

The small farmers and landowners who dominated Mississippi politics and society during the early 20th century deeply resented the absentee corporate timber lords. This resentment broadened into a general public hostility toward the development of any large industrial operations. As a result, Mississippi failed to participate in the rapid growth of industry which many states experienced during the years preceding World War I.

Although wartime demand for food and fiber brought widespread prosperity to Mississippi, the good times were short-lived. By 1919, the price of cotton had risen to more than 35 cents per pound. But one year later, it had nosedived to a disastrous 15 cents, ushering in an extended era of almost unrelieved desolation.

In 1927, the Mississippi River broke through its levees and inundated the southern half of the Delta for more than two months, destroying millions of dollars worth of crops and property. The Great Depression began to invade Mississippi's economy in 1930, and in 1932 the price of cotton fell to five cents a pound. Large numbers of farmers lost their land to foreclosure, and property owners failed to pay taxes on a quarter of the state's land area. With immediate debts of $13 million and only $1,300 in the treasury, the state of Mississippi was bankrupt.

A retail sales tax initiated by Governor Mike Conner (1932-36), together with the relief programs of President Franklin D. Roosevelt's New Deal, helped pull Mississippi through the worst of the crisis. Long-term reform in the state's economy began with Governor Hugh White (1936-40) and his Balance Agriculture with Industry (BAWI) plan, which attracted out-of-state industry with local bond issues and state tax exemptions. Ultimately, however, the real solution to the Depression in Mississippi was World War II.

AGRICULTURE COMES OF AGE

Until the advent of the Second World War, almost 75 percent of Mississippi's population worked on farms. Cotton was the overwhelmingly dominant crop, and it was grown and harvested using methods and equipment that had changed little since before the Civil War. Although early attempts had been made to improve farming practices through the work of state-supported agricultural experiment stations, research at Mississippi A&M College (now Mississippi State University), and the efforts of the Cooperative Extension Service, significant advances finally began to come with the increased demand and higher prices created by the war. Increased mechanization and sophisticated agricultural technology enabled farmers to deliver more production from fewer acres. The number of farms in Mississippi was reduced by 10% during the war years, the farm population shrank by 25%, and the sharecropping system became virtually obsolete.

Mississippi's agricultural revolution continued in the years following the war. Cotton was finally dethroned and replaced by soybeans as the state's primary crop. Cotton fields were converted to pastureland for livestock, and poultry production became an important commercial reality. The state's farmers employed ever more sophisticated fertilizers, herbicides, and pesticides, and the use of tractors, combines, and harvesting machines proliferated. In order to more efficiently utilize the expensive new technology and machinery, farming operations were centralized. In the decades following the end of the war, the number of individual farms in Mississippi dropped by two-thirds, yet production more than doubled during the same period.

WARTIME REVITALIZATION

World War II also had an extraordinary effect on the non-farm areas of Mississippi's social and economic life. Army camps, air bases, and ammunition plants were built at several locations around the state. Pascagoula's Ingalls shipyard, which had been established in 1938 under the BAWI plan, thrived on a tremendous boom in shipbuilding, and the population in the Pascagoula area grew by 200 percent between 1940 and 1943. Throughout Mississippi, about 25,000 manufacturing jobs were added to the economy during the war years, and the wages of industrial workers tripled.

Wartime prosperity, of course, expanded opportunities in other states, as well, and record numbers of black Mississippians left the segregation of their home state to work in northern factories. For those who stayed in the state, particularly the black soldiers who had been exposed to the relatively high level of racial tolerance in the north and overseas, the situation in Mississippi became increasingly intolerable, setting the stage for the most dramatic chapter in the state's history since the civil war.

TURMOIL AND TRAGEDY

Through the decade of the 1950s, Mississippi's leadership clung fast to segregation in the face of United States Supreme Court decisions declaring separate facilities to be unconstitutional. Thousands of segregationists joined "Citizen's Councils" to promote their views, and the state Legislature created the Sovereignty Commission in 1956, which worked to discourage integration.

In the 1960s, supporters of civil rights began to take direct action against Mississippi's segregated restaurants, beaches, libraries, and other facilities. Calling themselves "freedom riders," busloads of activists from other parts of the country arrived in Mississippi to join the protests. And in 1962, A federal court mandated the admission of a black air force veteran named James Meredith to the previously all-white University of Mississippi. Governor Ross Barnett (1960-64) defied the order, and a riot ensued in which two people were killed. President John F. Kennedy sent 20,000 federal troops to restore order on the Oxford campus, and Meredith was eventually admitted.

As escalating racial strife began to yield such tragedies as the 1963 assassination of NAACP Field Secretary Medger Evers and the murders of three civil rights volunteers in 1964, even confirmed segregationists were shocked into calling for peace. Governor Paul B. Johnson (1964-68) pointed out that violence and confrontation were injuring the state's economy which, he said, was "not divisible by race, color, or creed." Businesses in the state, with the impetus of the 1964 Civil Rights Act, began to abandon discriminatory policies, and Mississippi's public school system undertook the process of desegregation.

The Voting Rights Act of 1965 resulted in the registration of a quarter of a million black voters by the end of the decade — nearly one-fourth of the state's electorate. White politicians found that they had to compete for the black vote, so blatantly racist appeals rapidly disappeared from Mississippi political campaigns. And, significantly, black politicians began to toss their hats into the ring. By the 1970s, there were more black elected officials in Mississippi than in any other state in the union.

OPPORTUNITIES AND OPTIMISM

Mississippi's economy continued to evolve through the 1970s and 1980s, reflecting a national shift away from manufacturing and toward the technology and service industries. Aggressive programs of targeted industrial development began to lure business operations from around the country to relocate in the state. New opportunities in education, employment, and political participation presented exciting possibilities to all Mississippians.

Without question, however, the state continued to labor under legacies of the past. There continued to be a degree of mistrust among members of various social classes, among residents of different regions of the state, and among different levels of state government. And Mississippi remained poorly ranked among the 50 states in such areas as illiteracy, infant mortality, teenage maternity, and per capita income. Total racial harmony did not yet prevail, although blacks and whites were learning to respect each other and work together for mutual benefit.

Importantly, many Mississippians were beginning to make a realistic assessment of where the state had come from, where it was, and where it needed to go in the future. Governor William F. Winter (1980–84) worked tirelessly and courageously in support of improved public schools. His efforts culminated in the landmark Educational Reform Act of 1982, which has come to symbolize Mississippi's break with the policies and politics of the past. That fundamental reform has been the foundation of subsequent change in government, in education, and in Mississippi's hope for the future.

Governor Bill Allain (1984–88) took the lead in state government reform with implementation of the Administrative Reorganization Act of 1984 — an act which was the result of his persistent efforts as the state's Attorney General during the previous administration. A constitutional study commission was appointed in 1985 to begin the process of revision or replacement of Mississippi's 1890 constitution.

The commitment to change endured through the 1988 legislative sessions. Educational funding was increased to purchase more and better textbooks and to raise teachers' salaries to the Southeastern average. Compulsory school attendance was extended to age 16. Legislation was passed mandating centralized purchasing systems within counties and allowing county residents to vote on replacing the antiquated beat system with a more efficient unit system of administration. And work was begun on a comprehensive reorganization of state government.

Following passage of gubernatorial succession, far-reaching changes in the procedural rules of the House of Representatives, and shortly before his retirement from 39 years as a lawmaker and three terms as Speaker of the House, C. B. "Buddie" Newman observed that "the winds of change" were blowing in the state. "It looks to me," he said, "like the winds of change have turned into a tornado."

After a century and a half of commitment to policies of the past, the late 1980s saw Mississippi finally turn its united and collective vision toward the future.

EDUCATION

For over five years, the State of Mississippi has been engaged in a quiet revolution, systematically rethinking and restructuring the manner in which we are educating the next generation of Mississippians. The goal: to give our young people the skills required to be competitive in the nation's and, indeed, the world's workforce as we enter the next century.

Guided by the tenets of the historic 1982 Education Reform Act, Mississippi has begun to make dramatic changes in the manner in which schools are operated. From the appointments of a new State Board of Education and State Superintendent, all of which previously were elected positions, to the continuous development of five-year plans at both the district and state levels, we have addressed almost every facet of the educational experience. Under the direction of the Board and the Superintendent, the State Department of Education has provided assistance to local districts as they have instituted these sweeping changes.

Some of the changes have emphasized the importance of early childhood education. The establishment of full-day public school kindergartens and the addition of teaching assistants in the primary grades reflect this focus. Other efforts are directed toward insuring that students enroll and remain in school, manifested in compulsory attendance provisions and dropout prevention programs.

Among the most far-reaching of changes are processes for improving the quality of what takes place in the classroom and providing for more accountability. New standards for teacher certification and professional development for administrators, teachers, and staff along with new procedures for school accreditation are geared toward evaluating schools' and personnel performance and giving directions for addressing problem areas.

Reforms have also been aimed at raising the standards for measuring student achievement and improving student performance on nationally standardized tests. More exacting requirements for graduation, including passing a functional literacy examination, have been set. A State Department-developed curriculum incorporating performance objectives is now the basis for instruction statewide. Instructional management programs have introduced scope and sequence criteria to the curriculum so that performance can be more uniformly evaluated. And statewide competency testing in grades 3, 4, 5, 6, 8, and 11 along with a tracking system has helped us identify children's weaknesses and target remediation efforts.

When Ray Mabus was inaugurated as the 59th governor of the state of Mississippi in January, 1988, he proclaimed a new day for Mississippi, "a day of hope and destiny." In defining that "new day" he set the priorities for his administration in no uncertain terms.

Mississippi's new day, Governor Mabus said, demands a new standard of fiscal accountability from its public officials to insure that dollars are well-spent and resources well-directed. And for Governor Mabus, the state's most significant investment should be in the area of education. "A new day also demands a new and uncompromising drive for the very best in education," he said. "We will not have first class schools if we give them second rate resources. We will not move ahead economically if we are stalled educationally."

Toward this end, the 1988 Mississippi Legislature made an unprecedented commitment to strengthening the educational assets of the state by boosting teachers' salaries by 19 percent over a two-year period, bringing them in line with the regional average. Further, the Legislature increased funding for Mississippi's universities by 20 percent — the largest dollar increase in the history of higher education in Mississippi and, over a two-year period, the largest percentage increase in the nation.

Mississippi's leaders have demonstrated their belief in the wisdom of investing in human capital by dedicating a significant portion of the state's budget to education — 65 percent of the general fund expenditures. For any state in the nation such an investment would be noteworthy. But for a state such as Mississippi, whose economic resources are limited, it represents a vision of perception and purpose. It is irrefutable evidence of the belief that it is smart business to prepare for the future by making investments that have a high degree of certainty for paying good returns.

As Governor Mabus remarked in his inaugural address, "To any who say we cannot afford the price of better schools, we reply: Mississippi can't afford the cost of ignorance, illiteracy, and wasted talent. A new day in our state means a new prosperity for all our people. For too long, we've only talked the talk; in the years ahead we must truly walk the walk. And the path to prosperity will be marked by the milestones of our own effort."

THE STATE BOARD OF EDUCATION

Following the passage of the Education Reform Act of 1982 and the adoption of the constitutional amendment in 1982, the structure of the State Board of Education changed dramatically. Historically comprised of the State Superintendent of Education, the Attorney General, and the Secretary of State, the board is comprised of nine members appointed by the Governor, the Lieutenant Governor, and the Speaker of the House of Representatives.

TYPES OF SCHOOL DISTRICTS

Basically, there are three types of school districts in Mississippi: county unit, consolidated, and municipal separate. The districts operate as follows:

County Unit - This type of district embraces all territory of a county except the area of any municipal separate school district. The County Board of Education is the governing body. The five-member board is elected by popular vote, one from each supervisor's district, while the County Superintendent is elected countywide by popular vote for a four-year term. The County Board of Supervisors levies local contribution to schools.

Consolidated - This type of district is composed of less than the entire county and has its own board of trustees who are elected by popular vote. These districts act through the County Board of Education and do not levy a district tax for contribution to the minimum foundation program. There are two types of consolidated districts: regular and line. The territory of the regular consolidated district lies within a single county, while the territory of the line consolidated district lies in more than one county. The County Board of Supervisors is the taxing authority. The Consolidated School Board appoints the superintendent.

Municipal Separate - This type of district always includes a city or large town. It may or may not include additional adjacent territory outside the corporate limits. The board of trustees is appointed by the municipality's governing body. These trustees serve for staggered five-year terms. These districts do not participate in countywide school funds, nor do they pay taxes into such funds. The School Board appoints the superintendent. These districts request the governing authority of the municipality to levy funds for the support of the school district.

HISTORY

The origin of Sixteenth Section School Trust Lands in the United States can be traced back to colonial roots. In keeping with English common-law tradition, New England colonists reserved lands in their settlements for the support of public schools. In an early legislative enactment by the government of the United States, the Land Ordinance of 1785, whose author was Thomas Jefferson, that tradition of reserving land for schools was continued.

The Land Ordinance of 1785 was designed to encourage westward expansion. It provided for the survey and sale of the Northwest Territory. The basic unit of measurement in the survey, known as the "rectangular survey system," was the township — an area six miles square.

The township was further divided into thirty-six sections, each one mile square and identified by numbers. The Land Ordinance of 1785 "reserved the lot No. 16, of every township, for the maintenance of public schools within said township...."

The reserving of land was further entrenched in the Northwest Ordinance of 1789, which provided for the government of the Northwest Territory. That enactment stated: "Religion, morality, and knowledge, being necessary to good government and the happiness of mankind, schools and the means of education shall forever be encouraged."

Those early laws, declared the United States Supreme Court in 1890, created in the states a "binding and perpetual obligation to use the granted lands for the support of public education."

Though the land which became the State of Mississippi was not a part of the Northwest Territory, similar terms and obligations were imposed on that land prior to statehood. Congress established the Mississippi Territory in 1789, which comprised what is now the southern two-thirds of Mississippi and Alabama, and provided that it be governed by the provisions of the Northwest Ordinance of 1789.

Georgia, which claimed the territory under its original charter from England, ceded the land to the United States in 1802, likewise on the condition that statehood would be attained on the same conditions and with the same privileges granted the Northwest Territory under the Northwest Ordinance of 1789.

In 1803, Congress provided for the survey and sale of all lands south of the State of Tennessee, and, as with the Northwest Territory, Section Number Sixteen in each township was reserved for the support of the public schools. In 1804, the Mississippi Territory was extended northward to the Tennessee line.

Finally, in 1817, the Mississippi Territory was divided by Congress into the State of Mississippi and the Alabama Territory. The Congressional action called for the survey of Mississippi's lands and the reservation of Sixteenth Sections. There remained, however, the question of the Indians.

There were Indians in the area before Georgia received its grants and before the United States came into existence. The Choctaws occupied the land south and west of a line made by extending the boundary line between Coahoma County and Tunica County in a southeasterly direction. The Chickasaws inhabited all parts of the twenty-three counties north and east of that line.

The Indians were removed from Mississippi — the Choctaws in September of 1830 by the Treaty of Dancing Rabbit Creek, and the Chickasaws in 1832 by the Treaty of Pontotoc Creek. The difference between the two treaties had far-reaching results which are still felt today.

In the Treaty of Pontotoc Creek, the lands of the Chickasaws were ceded to the United States for the purpose of sale by the government to private parties, with the net proceeds going to the Chickasaws. Despite a clause in the Treaty which stated that the lands would be sold "in the same manner and on the same terms as other public lands," the Chickasaw lands were sold with no reservation made for school lands. On the other hand, Sixteenth Sections, subsequent to the Treaty of Dancing Rabbit Creek, were properly reserved in government land sales in the Choctaw area.

Although the word "trust" did not appear in Mississippi state laws governing school lands until passage of the Sixteenth Sections and Lieu Lands Act of 1978, the Mississippi Supreme Court ruled as early as 1895 that Sixteenth Section Land is properly held by the State in trust for public schools. In 1906, State Supreme Court Chief Justice A. H. Whitfield wrote in a majority opinion that the State had violated a "sacred trust" by allowing leaseholders to cut and sell timber on Sixteenth Section Land.

"Sixteenth Sections are set apart as a sacred trust. No greater trust can be committed to any state than that of the education of the children within its borders," Chief Justice Whitfield wrote. "And, if one such trust can be more sacred than another, it is that trust designed to bring home to the doors of the poor children of the commonwealth the means of acquiring a reasonably good education."

That notable theme was codified into state law in the opening sentence of the historic Sixteenth Sections and Lieu Lands Act of 1978, commonly referred to as the "Sixteenth Section Land Reform Act": "Sixteenth section school lands, or lands granted in lieu thereof, constitute property held in trust for the benefit of the public schools and must be treated as such." The Act took the control of School Trust Lands from County Boards of Supervisors, who had been responsible for their management since 1880, and gave it to local Boards of Education under the general supervision of the Secretary of State, custodian of the state's public lands.

FOUR-STEP PROGRAM FOR TRUST MANAGEMENT

When Secretary of State Dick Molpus took office in January 1984, he became concerned about the general neglect and abuse which the Sixteenth Section School Trust Lands had been receiving. The abuse had been long-standing. In 1845, then-Governor A. G. Brown, in commenting on the management of revenues from Sixteenth Section School Trust Lands, found that management to range from "a considerable degree of success to inefficiency, criminal negligence, and downright dishonesty."

Over one hundred years later, in 1948, a Legislative investigating committee reporting on Sixteenth Section management wrote: "We regret to report there have come to our attention sales of timber at such grossly inadequate prices as to shock the conscience, and, in some instances, as to constitute nothing more nor less than donation of this timber to private individuals." That mismanagement is a "Legacy of Shame."

Prior to 1978, there were instances in which leases on Sixteenth Section School Trust Lands were let for literally pennies per acre and for a one-time lump-sum payment of pennies per acre for 99-year terms. During this period, in some areas relatives and political cronies of elected officials amassed personal wealth at the expense of the school district.

To eradicate the "Legacy of Shame," the Secretary of State formulated a Four-Step Program to enforce strictly the 1978 Reform Act and to require responsible land management from local officials.

The first step required the forwarding of documents to the Secretary of State's office, as mandated by law. Those documents included all post-1978 leases, abstracts or certificates of title, and classification forms. The focus of that step was to provide the Secretary of State with a data base for use in overall supervision and management of the School Trust Lands.

The second step required that competent appraisals of the School Trust Lands be attached to all leases subsequently executed by local officials. That step ensured that the rentals charged for leases would provide a fair return based upon the value of the land.

The third step concerned the review and renegotiation of leases executed by the School Boards for below fair-market rental value since July 1, 1978, when the Boards became responsible for local management of Sixteenth Section School Trust Lands. School Boards have completed renegotiation proceedings in some districts, have hired appraisers to assist in the proceedings in others, and have contracted with consultants and are contacting leaseholders in the remaining districts. On the whole, the progress of the school districts in the execution of the third step has been encouraging.

The fourth and final step of the program has included several phases. First, the Boards were requested to review all leases to determine if there were any that might have fallen into the category of what is known as a "to-please" — that is, "the issuance of a new lease on a tract of land where there is already in existence an outstanding lease on the tract which has not been cancelled or otherwise terminated." That practice was principally utilized to avoid the fair-price requirements contained in the 1978 Reform Act.

Second, School Boards were also asked to review leases that were cancelled and shortly thereafter renewed prior to July 1, 1978, and to determine if those lease amounts appear to be unconstitutional donations of public lands. Such cancellation and renewal practices were utilized to circumvent the intent of the Reform Act.

Next, in June 1985, the Secretary of State requested School Boards in those districts where Sixteenth Section School Trust Lands lay within the boundary of a municipality and on which leases were executed for 99-year terms to review those leases for legality and adequacy of the lease rental amount. That effort was designed to avoid perpetuating the "Legacy of Shame" into the next century.

Finally, in the last phase of the fourth step, the Boards were asked to review all pre-1978 leases for adequacy of consideration. Those were the leases executed under the management of the County Boards of Supervisors. With the completion of that phase, expected in the near future, Sixteenth Section School Trust Land management will finally be able to shake the spectre of the "Legacy of Shame."

RESULTS AND THE FUTURE

The completion of the Four-Step Program is at hand. Where there were once nearly 5,000 Sixteenth Section School Trust Land leases on record at 50 cents per acre or less (more than one-half of all surface leases), few remain.

Of those remaining, the majority of nearly 700 leases are currently the subject of litigation in state courts. Two dispositive appellate cases await action by the Mississippi Supreme Court, and the Secretary of State's Office in conjunction with the Attorney General's Office has filed amicus or "friend of the court" briefs in order to vigorously enforce the trust.

There is no doubt that the general national and state economies have had an effect on Sixteenth Section School Trust Land revenues. The declines in a variety of industries such as oil and gas, timber, and agriculture have been reflected in the trust. The accompanying graphs reveal the impact these economic forces have had on trust revenues. If renegotiation had not been in full progress to raise the per-acre values received on the questionable leases, the general economic declines would have been catastrophic.

A phase of trust management is now being entered in which efforts will be devoted to development and long-range planning. With the new legislation achieved in 1986 and 1987 and the federal Conservation Reserve Program, the forest land resources are being more fully realized. Full implementation of the state program is conservatively estimated to result in a sustained yield of $16 million annually by the year 2011. The Mississippi Forestry Commission has estimated that an annual rate of return of $41.57 per acre can be expected.

There are long-range plans being developed now for residential subdivisions and commercial developments on the trust lands which will generate millions of dollars in the years to come for public education in Mississippi.

Responsible management of the Sixteenth Section School Trust Lands is working, but we must remain ever vigilant to avoid a repeat of history's past abuses. Responsible management requires strong grass-roots citizen support and honest public officials who are concerned about preserving a vibrant legacy for Mississippi's public schoolchildren.

CHICKASAW CESSION

The history of the Chickasaw Cession runs from 1832 to the present. A treaty of cession was made and entered into by General John Coffee, who was duly authorized by the President of the United States, and the whole Chickasaw Nation, in General Council assembled at the Council House, on October 20, 1832. The results of this treaty ceded the lands north of a line drawn from the southwest corner of Tunica County to the northwest corner of Lowndes County, embracing in whole or in part 24 counties. Terms of this treaty specified that lands should be surveyed and sold at an agreed upon minimum price, proceeds from which were to go to the Chickasaw Indian Tribe. This treaty is known as the Pontotoc Creek Treaty and was ratified on March 1, 1833, after which the immediate survey was authorized and land sales begun. As news spread that cheap land was available, it appears that buyers came and land sales were rapid, and it also appears that these rapid transactions contributed to the neglecting of sixteenth section reservation for the benefit of township schools. This mistake was noted and the United States government, in an effort to correct this error, issued lands in lieu of those sold sixteenth sections in various parts of the state, most of which being given from lands the government owned in the Delta counties.

The total amount of land ceded in the Chickasaw Purchase was 6,283,804 acres. The 36th part of this amount was 174,555 acres, being the amount of land given in lieu of those sixteenth section sales. A review of the original survey approved February 8, 1838, re-established the north boundary approximately three miles south of the Tennessee line and reduced the amount of acres to 6,071,169.2, but apparently the amount of lieu lands remained constant. The Mississippi Legislature in 1848 authorized a 99-year lease "renewable forever" at a price not less than $6 per acre, the proceeds to be a charge upon the state to be held in trust. The total sale yielded approximately $1,047,330. The 1856 Legislature authorized the use of these funds at eight percent interest to be paid to the counties in the Chickasaw Cession on a per-acre basis. Loans were made to various railroad companies at an interest of eight percent. A legislative act in 1863 authorized the railroads to pay their indebtedness in gold, silver, or treasury notes of the state into the State Treasury to be used to defray ordinary state expenses. In so doing, the state bound itself to pay the interest to the various counties in the Chickasaw Cession. The railroad companies eventually defaulted in payments or made settlements with worthless paper resulting in almost a total loss. Since this time, the State Legislature has appropriated monies representing the amount of interest lost due to these investment failures; however, the amount of interest has been reduced to six percent since enactment of the 1890 Mississippi Constitution, Section 212. The amount of this Chickasaw Cession school money appropriated by the Legislature annually is $62,191. This amount is disbursed in equal payments on May 1 and November 1. The above amount represents approximately 36 cents per acre per year.

The Legislature recognized the inequity in this situation and appropriated a $1 million increase per year for five years to go to the Chickasaw Cession schools. It has been noted, however, that even at the end of those five years, the schools will be getting only about two-thirds the state average per student.

Concerned residents in the Chickasaw Cession school districts had previously filed suit in federal court alleging, among other grounds, that the state's distribution of the money violated the equal protection clause of the United States Constitution. The United States Supreme Court, in 1986, agreed in a 6-3 majority vote of the Justices.

The Court concluded that the Chickasaw residents should have an opportunity to try to prove their case and thus sent the case back to the United States Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals. A hearing is pending in that court.

MISSISSIPPI PUBLIC COMMUNITY AND JUNIOR COLLEGES

DISTRICTS AND CAMPUSES

The creation, establishment, maintenance, and operation of public junior colleges is authorized by Section 37-29-1, Mississippi Code. The extension of curriculum in agricultural high schools and certain municipal school districts to include the freshmen and/or sophomore years of college work was authorized in 1924. In 1928 the Legislature authorized the establishment of junior colleges at these schools and provided that other school districts and counties could unite in the establishment of junior colleges.

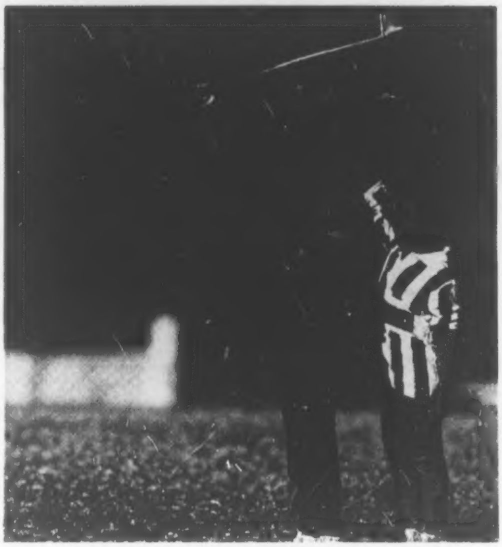
By 1930-31, there were 11 such institutions formed, all in connection with an agricultural high school, with a combined junior college enrollment of 1,619 students.

Four additional junior colleges were founded by 1950, and the 15 districts boasted enrollments of 7,984.

In 1987, the Legislature authorized the districts to change their names to community colleges to reflect the broad community base which is inherent in the programs and activities of these institutions. By July, 1988, 11districts had taken the community college name.

There are 15 community and junior college districts in 1988-89 operating 36 centers. These include 22 comprehensive campuses and 14 vocational-technical centers, eight of which are combination secondary/postsecondary centers.

Enrollments for the fall of 1987 exceeded 55,000 students, with 45% in academic courses, 28% in vo-tech programs, and 27% in continuing education and economic development activities. Approximately 97% are Mississippi residents, 58% female, 40% part-time, and 30% minority.



MISSION

The mission of the early junior colleges was to offer academic coursework — the freshman and sophomore years of college work. The mission was broadened during the 1940s when vocational or trade programs of education were upgraded and expanded in line with World War II efforts and the retraining of its veterans. Statewide missions assigned to junior colleges in the late 1950s and the 1960 decade included nursing education and vocational and technical education.

Sections 37-4-1 and 37-29-1, Mississippi Code, set the basic missions of community and junior colleges as provision of educational services for the people of the state through:

- Academic courses and degrees for transfer to senior colleges
- Academic, technical, and vocational programs for career-oriented goals
- Continuing education for those who desire and can benefit from such opportunities
- Providing leadership in civic, economic, and cultural growth.

Public junior colleges are the delivery system for postsecondary vocational-technical education in Mississippi. Nearly 500 approved courses afford a choice of over 100 unduplicated occupational programs. Programs which reflect needs distributed throughout the state are offered at most junior college centers.

ORGANIZATION AND GOVERNANCE

The public community/junior college districts are political subdivisions of local rather than state government (Section 37-4-1). Each district is governed by a local board of trustees who "shall be the general government..." and "shall have full power to do all things necessary to the successful operation of the district..." (Section 37-29-67).

Local boards of trustees are comprised of from two to six members from each county in the district. The county superintendent is one member, with other member(s) appointed by the board of supervisors of the county. Trustees serve five-year terms.

Since the establishment of junior colleges in 1928, a state-level coordinating agency has existed. The Junior College Commission and its staff within the State Department of Education, served as the state regulatory agency until 1986. That year the State Board for Community and Junior Colleges was established as an independent state-level coordinating agency for the system of two-year colleges (Section 37-4-3). The State Board is composed of 10 members, appointed by the Governor with the advise and consent of the Senate. Members serve six-year terms which expire in staggered years.

The State Board administers state laws and appropriations for the system, sets standards for operation, and approves new programs and attendance centers of the community/junior colleges.

FINANCE

The 15 community and junior college districts budgeted approximately $200 million for all programs and activities in 1988-89. The educational and general budget of $155 million was derived from state appropriations, direct and indirect - 57%; student fees - 18%; county taxes and other local - 18%; federal - 6%. Approximately 55% of operating funds is spent for direct instructional costs and 75% is expended for salaries and benefits of employees. During the 1980 decade, county taxes provided 84% of the funds expended for capital improvements at the colleges.

INSTITUTIONS OF HIGHER LEARNING

The Mississippi Constitution was amended in 1943 to create a Board of Trustees free of gubernatorial control to direct the operations of the state-supported institutions of higher learning. The Board assumed its duties on May 8, 1944.

This constitutional Board of Trustees provides management and control of Mississippi's system of universities. The constitution provides that the Board members be appointed by the Governor with the required approval of the Senate. This public higher education governing board consists of 12 members: one from each of the seven congressional districts as existed in 1944, one from each of the three Supreme Court districts, and two appointed from the state-at-large.

Every four years the Governor appoints four members to the Board to serve 12-year terms.

In 1987, the Board appointed its first Commissioner of Higher Education. During the 1988 legislative session, the Mississippi State Legislature changed the name of the Executive Secretary and Director of the Board to the Commissioner of Higher Education.

The Commissioner of Higher Education is responsible for administering the policies and decisions of the Board. A professional staff with the highest level of expertise in academic programs, fiscal matters, information, student financial aid, and physical facilities is under the direction of the Commissioner.

The Board of Trustees meets on the third Thursday of each month, with committee meetings scheduled on the preceding Wednesday. The Board acts upon the recommendations of the 10 standing committees: the Agriculture and Forestry Committee; Athletics Committee; Finance Committee; Instruction, Administration and Policy Committee; Law School Committee; Legal Committee; Medical Affairs Committee; Research Committee; and Student Advisory Committee.

The Board of Trustees of State Institutions of Higher Learning conducts degree-credit courses on 11 established campuses, which include the eight public universities, the University of Mississippi Medical Center, the Mississippi Education and Research Center, and the Gulf Coast Research Laboratory; at six degree-granting off-campus centers; and in extension classes throughout the state. The available programs range from a wide variety of undergraduate disciplines to most professional fields. All eight universities offer master's-level programs, while five have programs at the education specialist level, and five offer doctoral-level teaching and research.

Enrollment figures for the fall term of 1987 at the eight universities including the University of Mississippi Medical Center showed 51,756 students pursuing academic degree credit in the system. On-campus totals were 47,520, enrollment at the University of Mississippi Medical Center was 1,412, and off-campus enrollment was 2,824. There were 2,557 students attending classes at the six degree-granting off-campus centers. Extension classes were offered by five of the universities in different locations, and these classes served 267 persons in the fall of 1987.

The Board of Trustees, through its executive office and professional staff, oversees a budget of almost $800 million per year. The Board also has jurisdiction over the physical plants of the institutions it governs. Replacement costs for all the buildings and lands are estimated to be close to $128 billion.

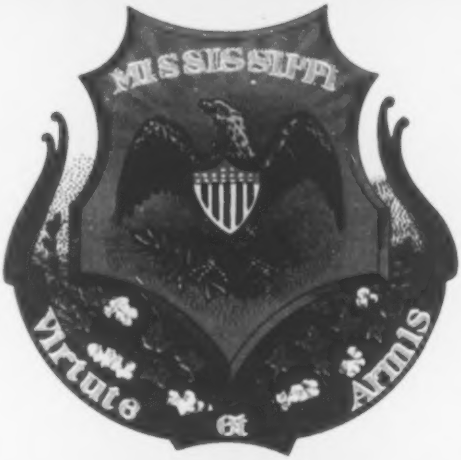
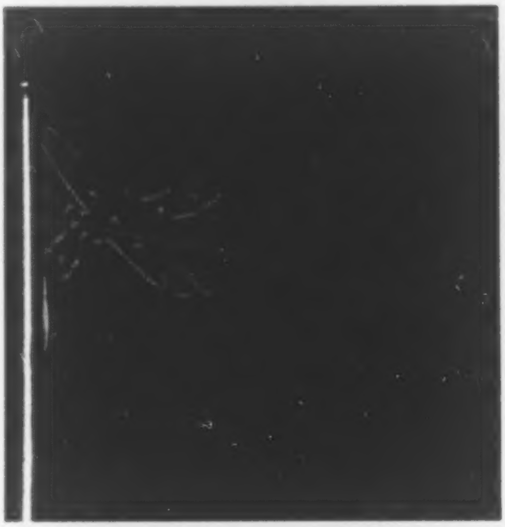
STATE SYMBOLS

STATE COAT OF ARMS



The committee to design a Coat of Arms was appointed by legislative action February 7, 1894, and the design proposed by that committee was accepted and became the official Coat of Arms. The committee recommended for the Coat of Arms a "Shield in color blue, with an eagle upon it with extended pinions, holding in the right talon a palm branch and a bundle of arrows in the left talon, with the word 'Mississippi' above the eagle; the lettering on the shield and the eagle to be in gold; below the shield two branches of the cotton stalk, saltierwise, as in submitted design, and a scroll below extending upward and on each side three-fourths of the length of the shield; upon the scroll, which is to be red,the motto be printed in gold letters upon white spaces, as in design accompanying, the motto to be —VIRTUTE et ARMIS."

STATE FLAG



The committee to design a State Flag was appointed by legislative action February 7, 1894, and provided that the flag reported by the committee should become the official flag. The committee recommended for the flag "one with width two-thirds of its length; with the union square, in width two-thirds of the width of the flag; the ground of the union to be red and a broad blue saltier thereon, bordered with white and emblazoned with thirteen (13) mullets or five-pointed stars, corresponding with the number of the original States of the Union; the field to be divided into three bars of equal width, the upper one blue, the center one white, and the lower one extending the whole length of the flag, red—the national colors; the staff surmounted with a spear-head and a battle-axe below; the flag to be fringed with gold, and the staff gilded with gold." The Canton Corner is a replica of the Confederate Battle Flag.

STATE FLOWER AND TREE

An election was held in November 1900 to select a State Flower. Votes were submitted by 23,278 school children. The magnolia received 12,745 votes, the cotton blossom 4,171 and the cape jasmine 2,484. There were a few votes for other flowers. The magnolia was officially designated as the State Flower by the 1952 Legislature. In 1935, the Director of Forestry started a movement by which to select a State Tree for Mississippi, to be selected by nomination and election by the school children of the State. Four nominations were made—the magnolia, oak, pine and dogwood. The magnolia received by far the largest majority. On April 1, 1938, the Mississippi Legislature officially designated the magnolia as the State Tree. Chapter 365, Laws of Mississippi of 1938.

STATE BIRD

Found in all sections of Mississippi, the cheerful mockingbird was selected as the official State Bird by the Women's Federated Clubs and by the State Legislature in 1944.

STATE MOTTO

The State Motto of Mississippi, Virtute et Armis, meaning by valor and arms, was suggested by the Honorable James Rhea Preston, a native of Virginia, who was at the time Superintendent of Education in the State of Mississippi.

EVERYDAY FLAG ETIQUETTE

GENERAL DISPLAY

It is the universal custom to display the flag only from sunrise to sunset on buildings and on stationary flagstaffs in the open. However, when a patriotic effect is desired, the flag may be displayed twenty-four hours a day if properly illuminated during the hours of darkness.

1. When displayed either horizontally or vertically against a wall, The union should be uppermost and to the flag's own right, that is, to the observer's left. When displayed in a window, the flag should be displayed in the same way, with the union or blue field to the left of the observer in the street.

No other flag or pennant should be placed above, or if on the same level, to the right of the flag of the United States of America, except during church services conducted by naval chaplains at sea . . . for personnel of the Navy . . . when the church pennant may be flown above the flag.

No person shall display the flag of the United Nations or any other national or international flag equal, above, or in a position of superior prominence or honor to, or in place of, the flag of the United States at any place within the United States or any territory or possession thereof; Provided, that nothing in this section shall make unlawful the continuance of the practice heretofore followed of displaying the flag of the United Nations in a position of superior prominence or honor, and other national flags in positions of equal prominence or honor, with that of the flag of the United States at the headquarters of the United Nations.

2. When flags of States, cities, or localities, or pennants of societies are flown on the same halyard with the flag of the United States, the latter should always be at the peak.

3. When the flags are flown from adjacent staffs, the flag of the United States should be hoisted first and lowered last. No such flag or pennant may be placed above the flag of the United States or to the United States flag's right.

4. The flag of the United States of America, when it is displayed with another flag against a wall from crossed staffs, should be on the right, the flag's own right, and its staff should be in front of the staff of the other flag.

5. The flag of the United States of America should be at the center and at the highest point of the group when a number of flags of States or localities or pennants of societies are grouped and displayed from staffs.

6. When flags of two or more nations are displayed, they are to be flown from separate staffs of the same height. The flags should be of approximately equal size. International usage forbids the display of the flag of one nation above that of another nation in time of peace.

CHURCHES, AUDITORIUMS

7. When used on a speaker's platform, the flag, if displayed flat, should be displayed above and behind the speaker. When displayed from a staff in a church or public auditorium, the flag of the United States of America should hold the position of superior prominence, in advance of the audience, and in the position of honor at the clergyman's or speaker's right as he faces the audience. Any other flag so displayed should be placed on the left of the clergyman or speaker or the right of the audience.

HALF-STAFF

The flag, when flown at half-staff, should be first hoisted to the peak for an instant and then lowered to the half-staff position. The flag should be again raised to the peak before it is lowered for the day. On Memorial Day the flag should be displayed at half-staff until noon only, then raised to the top of the staff. By order of the President, the flag shall be flown at half-staff upon the death of principal figures of the United States Government and the Governor of a State, territory or possession, as a mark of respect to their memory. In the event of the death of other officials or foreign dignitaries, the flag is to be displayed at half-staff according to Presidential instructions or orders, or in accordance with recognized customs or practices not inconsistent with law.

In the event of the death of a present or former official of the government of any State, territory or possession of the United States, the Governor of that State, territory or possession may proclaim that the National flag may be flown at half-staff.

Executive Branch

The executive branch has the duty and responsibility of carrying out, or "executing," the governmental programs and policies established by law. The chief executive power of the state is vested in the Governor. The Governor serves a term of four years and may succeed himself for an additional term in office. The Governor must be at least thirty years of age, a United States citizen for twenty years, and a resident of the state for five years preceding the day of election.

In addition to the Governor, the Mississippi Constitution makes provision for a Lieutenant Governor, a Secretary of State, a State Auditor, a State Treasurer, and an Attorney General. The chief function of the Lieutenant Governor is to act as president of the Senate. The qualifications for Lieutenant Governor are the same as for Governor. The Secretary of State, the State Auditor, and the State Treasurer must be at least twenty-five years of age and a resident of the state for five years preceding the day of election. The Attorney General must be at least twenty-six years of age, a practicing attorney for five years, and a resident of the state for five years preceding the day of election.

The state Legislature has made provision by authority of the state Constitution for a Public Service Commission and a Highway Commission, both of which are made up of three commissioners, one elected from each of the state's Supreme Court districts. In addition, a Commissioner of Insurance and a Commissioner of Agriculture were authorized by the Legislature and are chief executive officers of their respective departments.

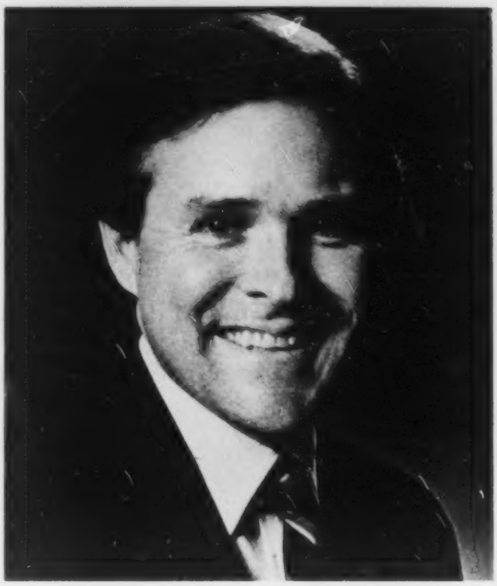
The qualifications for the Commissioner of Insurance and the Commissioner of Agriculture are the same as for the Secretary of State. Qualifications for Public Service Commissioners are also the same, with the additional requirement that they be resident electors of their Supreme Court districts. Highway Commissioners need only be resident electors of the Supreme Court districts from which they are elected.

All of the above officers are elected to four-year terms and may succeed themselves in office.

In addition to the elected executive officers mentioned, there are a number of officers appointed by the Governor. Among those are the Adjutant General, the Commissioner of Public Safety, and the chief executive officers of the departments of Banking and Consumer Finance, Economic Development, and Natural Resources, and of the Tax Commission.

The Governor also appoints members to numerous executive and administrative boards and commissions who in turn appoint the executive officers of the departments that they govern. Some of these boards and departments are the Fiscal Management Board, Personnel Board, Department of Health, Department of Public Welfare, Department of Corrections, and Department of Education. The state Superintendent of Education, formerly an elected officer, is appointed by the State Board of Education.

GOVERNOR



Duties:

The Governor is charged with executive direction and supervision of the general administration of the State. In this capacity, he sees that the laws are faithfully executed, supervises the official conduct of executive officers, acts as commander-in-chief of the state militia, and appoints officials as prescribed by law.

He is responsible for the presentation of a balanced budget to the Legislature; and approval or veto of legislation passed by the Legislature. He may call extraordinary sessions of the Legislature when he deems it necessary; and may issue pardons, executive orders; and extraditions of fugitives from other states.

The office provides staff assistance and liaison in all areas of state government administration and researches agency programs and policies.

RAYMOND MABUS, JR.

Ray Mabus, the 60th Governor of the State of Mississippi, is also the nation's youngest governor. His accomplishments include drafting and helping to pass the historic Education Reform Act of 1982 while working on the staff of former Governor William Winter.

In his first legislative session, Gov. Mabus helped fulfill the promise of education reform by spearheading the effort to raise teacher salaries to the Southeast average. Likewise during the 1988 session, he successfully guided passage of a bill that funded a study commission on how to streamline Mississippi's executive branch from 135 agencies, boards and commissions to no more than 15.

Later in 1988, Gov. Mabus received overwhelming support from the Legislature during a special session for a bill to help stop corruption, save money and make county government more responsive.

Mabus served as State Auditor from 1984 through 1987. During that time, he eliminated a large backlog of local government audits, and he made improvements to Mississippi's system of accounting and financial reporting that have been recognized nationally.

Gov. Mabus has received an undergraduate degree from the University of Mississippi and a master's degree from Johns Hopkins University. He graduated magna cum laude from the Harvard School of Law.

In 1987, he married the former Julie Hines of Jackson.

Duties:

He presides over the Senate, rules on points of order, assigns bills to committees, nominates standing committees of Senate and appoints all select and conference committees as ordered by Senate. Serves as member of Senate Rules Committee and Joint Legislative Budget Committee, serving as Chairman of Budget Committee on alternate years. May vote only in case of ties and speak from the floor while Senate is in Committee of the Whole. Signs all finally approved bills and resolutions. Directs authority over officers and employees of the Senate.

Brad Dye was born in Charleston, Mississippi. Graduating from Charleston High School where he was an Eagle Scout, he went on to The University of Mississippi to obtain his Bachelor of Business Administration degree in January, 1957. Two years later, he was awarded his law degree from the University's School of Law. While at Ole Miss, Dye served as President of the student body, was a member of Phi Alpha Delta legal fraternity, and was named to the Hall of Fame.

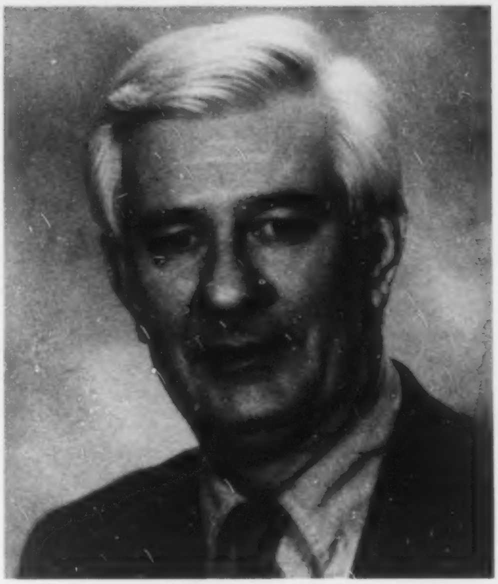
In 1950, Dye served as a Page in the U.S. House of Representatives for Rep. Jamie Whitten. After graduation from law school, he practiced law with his father in Grenada until 1961.

In 1959, he was elected to the Mississippi House of Representatives where he served as Vice Chairman of the Judiciary Committee.

Senator James O. Eastland appointed Dye as an attorney for the staff of the U.S. Senate Judiciary Committee in Washington, D.C. from 1961 to 1964.

In 1963, he was elected to the Mississippi State Senate and in 1965 resigned to accept an appointment by Governor Paul Johnson as a Commissioner of the Workmen's Compensation Commission.

In 1968, he was named Executive Director of the Mississippi Agricultural and Industrial Board by Governor John Bell Williams. In 1971, he resigned that post to enter the race for State Treasurer, which he won. He served in that position until 1976. He then served as President of Jackson Savings and Loan Association from January 1976 to March 1979.



In January 1980, Dye was sworn in as the 35th Lieutenant Governor of Mississippi. In 1983, he won re-election, and in 1987 he was re-elected to a third term which he is now serving.

DICK MOLPUS

Dick Molpus, a native of Philadelphia, Mississippi, has served as Secretary of State since 1984. Prior to his election in 1983, he served for three and one-half years as Executive Director of the Governor's Office of Federal-State Programs. In addition to this responsibility, Molpus served as a member of Governor Winter's Executive Staff and in that capacity was one of the architects of the historic Education Reform Act of 1982.

During Molpus' first year in office, he formulated a program to firmly enforce Sixteenth Section law and to require responsible trust-lands management. When the program was initiated, there existed literally thousands of acres of school land leased for pennies an acre, hurting school children and taxpayers alike. Since 1984, thousands of leases have been renegotiated.

The Office of Secretary of State became a self-supporting agency in 1986, moving from a $200,000 drain of tax dollars to a profit generator of $2.5 million over the last three years. This achievement occurred while the office was completing unprecedented modernization and computerization. The office is now one of the most technologically advanced Secretary of State's offices in the United States. Considerable reform has been initiated from this office in the areas of both election laws and business laws, beginning with the appointment of task forces and ending with the Legislature's enactment of broad ranging changes.

Molpus has been a forceful advocate of public school issues in Mississippi. Even after his term on the former State Board of Education during 1984, Molpus led advocate efforts resulting in the adoption of "no pass, no play" guidelines and increased funding for textbooks. He continues to be a spokesman focusing public attention on the costs of adult illiteracy, the inequities in school funding, and the need for upgrading school physical facilities.

Prior to his entry into government service, Molpus served as Vice-President in charge of manufacturing for Molpus Lumber Company, a family-owned business employing over 400 people. He was responsible for building and managing the company's Morton, Mississippi facility.

A 1971 Business Administration graduate of the University of Mississippi, Molpus is married to the former Sally Nash of Corinth. They are the parents of two school-aged children.

LEGISLATIVE BRANCH

The Constitution places the legislative authority of Mississippi in a Legislature made up of a Senate and a House of Representatives. The membership is presently limited to 52 Senators and 122 Representatives.

The Legislature is the law-making body of state government. A constitutional provision that no money can be spent from the state's treasury unless the Legislature passes a law to do so is the basis of the Legislature's "power of the purse." The sole power of impeachment is vested in the House of Representatives, with the power to try impeachments vested in the Senate.

A state Representative must be at least twenty-one years of age, and a state Senator at least twenty-five years of age at the time he or she takes office. The other qualifications for the office of Representative are: resident citizen of the state for four years and of the county for two years immediately preceding the election and a qualified elector of the state. The other qualifications for the office of Senator are: resident of the district to be represented for two years and a qualified elector of the state for four years.

Representatives and Senators are elected to four-year terms. The terms of all Legislators expire every four years.

The presiding officer of the House of Representatives is the Speaker of the House, a state Representative who is elected to the position by House members. The Senate's presiding officer is the Lieutenant Governor, who is the president of the Senate.

Legislators are administered an oath of office on the first day of the regular session of the year following their election. The Constitution requires the Legislature to convene yearly on the Tuesday after the first Monday in January.

During each regular session, the Legislature can be expected to send more than 500 bills to the Governor to be signed into law. Frequently, more than one-fourth of those are money bills (appropriations) to finance state government. As many as four to five times the number of bills that actually become laws will have been introduced for legislative consideration during each year.

The Constitution stipulates that bills may originate in either chamber of the Legislature and empowers each chamber to determine its own rules of procedure, except that each is prohibited from adjourning for more than three days without the consent of the other or from adjourning to another place other than where the two chambers are sitting.

Presently each body adopts its own rules; joint rules are also adopted to govern legislative procedures that affect the orderly flow of bills between the two houses. Legislative sessions last 90 days each year except during the first year of a new term when they last 125 days. The Governor may call a special session should he deem it necessary. The periods between legislative sessions are devoted to legislative studies by the members who work in committees to prepare bills for consideration in the upcoming session.

Legislative accountability to the people of Mississippi is provided by publication of all the Legislature's proceedings in journals. As well, the Constitution requires that the doors of each House shall be open "except in cases which may require secrecy."

Brad Dye was born in Charleston, Mississippi. Graduating from Charleston High School where he was an Eagle Scout, he went on to The University of Mississippi to obtain his Bachelor of Business Administration degree in January, 1957. Two years later, he was awarded his law degree from the University's School of Law. While at Ole Miss, Dye served as President of the student body, was a member of Phi Alpha Delta legal fraternity, and was named to the Hall of Fame.

In 1950, Dye served as a Page in the U.S. House of Representatives for Rep. Jamie Whitten. After graduation from law school, he practiced law with his father in Grenada until 1961.

In 1959, he was elected to the Mississippi House of Representatives where he served as Vice Chairman of the Judiciary Committee.

Senator James O. Eastland appointed Dye as an attorney for the staff of the U.S. Senate Judiciary Committee in Washington, D.C. from 1961 to 1964.

In 1963, he was elected to the Mississippi State Senate and in 1965 resigned to accept an appointment by Governor Paul Johnson as a Commissioner of the Workmen's Compensation Commission.

In 1968, he was named Executive Director of the Mississippi Agricultural and Industrial Board by Governor John Bell Williams. In 1971, he resigned that post to enter the race for State Treasurer, which he won. He served in that position until 1976. He then served as President of Jackson Savings and Loan Association from January 1976 to March 1979.

In January 1980, Dye was sworn in as the 35th Lieutenant Governor of Mississippi. In 1983, he won re-election, and in 1987 he was re-elected to a third term which he is now serving.

Dye is married to the former Donna Bess Bailey of Coffeeville. They have three sons and are members of Galloway United Methodist Church where Dye has served on the Administrative Board. He is a Mason and Shriner, and has worked for the Heart Fund, Cancer Drive, Red Cross, Boy Scouts, United Way, and as a YMCA Coach of youth sports. He was Charter Vice President of the Grenada Jaycees and Charter President of the University of Mississippi Business Alumni Association. In 1986, he was awarded the James O. Eastland Public Service Award by the Mississippi Democratic Party. He was a delegate to the National Democratic Convention in 1980 and led the delegation in 1984.

*Appropriations, revenue, and local and private bills, and bills to restore suffrage are excluded from these deadlines. For purposes of the deadlines herein set forth, the term "revenue bills" shall include only those bills whose primary purpose is to increase or decrease taxes or to authorize the issuance of bonds or the borrowing of money. Bills which are primarily for regulatory purposes which have revenue provisions included shall not be considered as revenue bills for deadline purposes. The deletion from a bill of the features which made it a revenue bill shall render the bill a general bill for deadline purposes.

Initial conference reports on all bills must be filed with the Secretary/Clerk no later than the time of adjournment on the day prior to being called up and considered. Appropriation bills which actually appropriate money and are recommitted for further conference are excluded from the requirement that the subsequent conference report be filed and lay on table one (1) day before being considered; however, original action must be taken on all appropriations conference reports by 2:00 p.m. on the 84th/119th day and subsequent reports must be filed no later than 6:00 p.m.

Requests for general bills and constitutional amendments to be drafted must be made no later than 6:00 p.m. on the 11th/49th day. The Rules Committee of the House or Senate, as the case may be, may authorize any member of its respective house to make requests, for one or more general bills or constitutional amendments to be drafted, after the expiration of the deadline for making such drafting requests but before the deadline for introduction of bills and constitutional amendments, upon a determination by the Rules Committee that such drafting requests are in response to conditions of an emergency nature arising subsequent to the deadline for making requests for general bills and constitutional amendments to be drafted.

Whenever the word "day" appears in this rule, it shall mean calendar day.

The above schedule shall not be deviated from except by the passage of a concurrent resolution adopted by a vote of two-thirds (2/3) of the membership of the House and Senate present and voting.

DRAFTING AND INTRODUCTION

A bill must first be drafted in proper form. Legislative research and drafting offices are operated on a year-round basis in both the House and the Senate to assist the members with the necessary research and legal work involved in drafting bills in correct form.

Since the advent of annual sessions, a system of pre-filing has been instituted in both Houses. This means that bills may be written and introduced on an unofficial basis in the interim between sessions. For all practical purposes, the pre-filed bills are treated in the same manner as bills introduced when the Legislature is actually in session. At the time a member signifies that a bill is to be filed, it is placed on the Speaker's/President's desk for referral to Committee and, after referral, is given a number which it will retain throughout the legislative process. When the session convenes, the pre-filed bills are introduced officially into the records. Bills introduced after the session convenes are dropped into the "hopper" at the Clerk's/Secretary's desk. Bills must be typewritten on legal-size paper, double-spaced, with the title and name of author or authors on the outside and must be introduced in original form.

REFERRED TO COMMITTEE

Each bill is referred to one or more of the standing committees in the House or Senate for study and recommendation. In the regular order of business, the bills are read by title and number, and the committee to which it has been referred is announced. All bills are listed on a daily introduction list, entered in the bill docket and committee books, and copies are reproduced. The bill itself is placed in a jacket and put into the committee box.

REPORTED BY COMMITTEE

The committee to which a bill has been referred reports its recommendations to the House or Senate — it may report the bill "Do Pass," "Do Pass As Amended," "Committee Substitute Do Pass," or it may report the bill "Do Not Pass," which has the effect of killing the bill unless a Minority Report is filed within three days by one or more of the members of the committee who were present at the meeting at which the bill was reported.

If a bill has not been reported by a committee after reference, a motion to withdraw the bill may be filed.

When a bill has been reported favorably by a committee, it is placed on the calendar for House or Senate action. Separate divisions of the calendar are kept for bills reported by the appropriations, revenue, and local and private committees. Appropriations and Revenue bills have precedence over bills on the General Calendar.

The Legislature operates under a system of deadlines which set the limits of time in which bills may be introduced, reported from Committee, acted upon originally in each House, amendments considered from other House, and Conference Reports adopted. The deadlines are for the purpose of assuring an orderly flow of legislative action within the 90-day constitutional limitation of sessions. The first session of each administration has a limitation of 125 days and the deadlines are adjusted for the additional time.

CONSIDERATION BY HOUSE/SENATE

When a bill comes up in its regular order on the calendar, it is usually called up and handled by the Chairman of the committee to which it has been referred. The bill is read and debated by the House or Senate and, at this time, amendments may be proposed and either adopted or rejected. Other action is also possible and in order at this time - the bill may be recommitted to the committee for further study, it may be laid on the table, subject to call, it may be set for special order, or postponed to another date for action. An amendment to strike all after the enacting clause, if adopted, would kill the bill, or if a motion carried to indefinitely postpone the bill, it would be dead.

THE VOTE

A quorum must be present for the vote on final passage of any measure. Bills of a general nature require a majority of those present and voting for passage; appropriations bills require a majority of the elected membership, revenue bills require a three-fifths majority of those present and voting; constitutional amendments require a two-thirds majority of those present and voting; bills restoring suffrage or bills to grant a donation or gratuity to any person require two-thirds of the elected membership. Adoption of Conference Reports or concurrence in Senate or House amendments require the same vote as was required for original passage of the bill. After passage of a bill, it is subject to reconsideration for one whole legislative day. After the time has passed for reconsideration, any amendments that were adopted are engrossed into the bill, and it is sent to the other House.

HOUSE/SENATE ACTION

When a bill reaches the other House, it goes through the same process of referral to Committee, report by Committee, and floor action. If a bill passes the other House without amendment, it is returned to the House of origin, enrolled, signed by the Speaker and the Lieutenant Governor, and presented to the Governor. If the other House adopts amendments to the bill, the bill and the accompanying amendments are returned to the House of origin, and the bill is placed on the calendar for concurrence or non-concurrence in the amendments of the other House. Should one House concur, the other is notified, the bill is engrossed, enrolled, and presented to the Governor. If one House declines to concur in the amendments of the other, it may request a conference to work out the differences between the two Houses. A conference committee is composed of three members from each House, and if the report of the conference committee is adopted by both Houses, the bill is engrossed, enrolled, and presented to the Governor.

GOVERNOR'S ACTION

The Governor must either approve a bill or return it with his objections to the House of its origin within five days (Sundays excepted) or it becomes law without his signature. (If the Legislature adjourns before the five days have expired, the Governor then has 15 days for consideration of the bill.) When a bill has been vetoed, the objections of the Governor are spread at large upon the Journal, it is reconsidered, and if two-thirds of those present and voting vote in favor of the bill, it is forwarded to the other House. If two-thirds of that House vote in favor of its passage over the Governor's veto, the bill then becomes a law.

The above steps in the passage of a bill are a simplified example of the parliamentary procedure involved in legislation. The processes seem very complex, but a knowledge of the rules of procedure and actual experience in observing a legislature in action help in understanding that the rules and procedures are to provide thorough study and debate of measures before they become law.

JUDICIAL BRANCH—APPELLATE COURT

The Supreme Court is the State's court of last resort. There is no intermediate appellate court. The Supreme Court hears appeals from the two courts of general jurisdiction, i.e., Circuit and Chancery Courts. It also hears direct appeals from the County Courts in cases of eminent domain and those felony cases transferred by the Circuit Court to the County Court for trial. Cases originating in Justice and Municipal Courts, which have been appealed through the Circuit Courts, can only be appealed to the Supreme Court when a constitutional question is involved and then only when the appeal is allowed by a Supreme or Circuit Court judge. The court has the power to issue extraordinary writs. Composed of nine justices, the Court may sit in panels of three or en banc.

Most appeals from limited jurisdiction courts are heard in the Circuit or Chancery courts. In 17 counties where County Courts exist, appeals from the Justice and Municipal Courts are heard in those courts rather than the Circuit Court.

TRIAL COURTS

Mississippi's trial court system consists of two general jurisdiction courts, i.e., Circuit and Chancery Courts, and four limited jurisdiction courts, i.e., County, Family, Justice, and Municipal Courts.

Circuit Courts have original jurisdiction over all civil and criminal matters, not vested exclusively in another court or courts. Circuit judges have the power to issue extraordinary writs. There are no formal provisions for chief judges in the multi-judge districts.

Chancery Courts have original jurisdiction over matters involving equity, divorce, alimony, probate, guardianship, and sanity matters. If a County Court has not been established the Chancery Courts have exclusive jurisdiction over juvenile matters. The Courts' jurisdiction over equity matters involving less than $10,000 is concurrent with County Courts. These Courts may also issue extraordinary writs. There are no formal provisions for chief judges in the multi-judge districts.

Seventeen of the 82 counties have established County Courts. These Courts have exclusive jurisdiction over matters involving eminent domain, partition of personal property, and unlawful entry and detainer. They have concurrent jurisdiction with Circuit and Justice Courts and preliminary hearings in felony cases. If transferred by the Circuit Courts, the County Courts may also adjudicate certain noncapital felony cases. These Courts have jurisdiction over juvenile matters, except in Harrison County where a Family Court has been established.

There is only one Family Court in the State. It is in Harrison County, which is the site of Gulfport. The Court has countywide exclusive jurisdiction over juveniles and also adults charged with contributing to the neglect or delinquency of a juvenile.

Justice Courts have exclusive civil jurisdication over all matters involving up to $500. These Courts conduct preliminary hearings in felony cases and have concurrent jurisdiction with Circuit Courts over all criminal matters, where the punishment does not exceed a fine and sentence to the county jail. Each county is divided into five Justice Court districts.

Municipal Courts have exclusive jurisdiction over ordinance violations. They also serve as committing courts for state law violations committed in the county but outside the city limits, and for felonies committed inside the city limits. Under certain conditions, some of these Courts also exercise juvenile jurisdiction.

The trial courts of the State are not subject to the administrative or supervisory authority of the Supreme Court. There are no provisions in the statutes or court rules requiring multi-judge districts to designate a chief justice.

JUDICIARY

Judges of the Supreme, Circuit, Chancery, County, and Family Courts must be attorneys with at least five years of law experience. They must also fulfill certain age and residency requirements. A Justice Court judge must be a county resident for at least two years, and have a high school diploma. If he is not an attorney, he must attend an 18 hour seminar conducted by the Attorney General.

Depending upon the population and size of the county, a Municipal Court judge must be a qualified elector of the county and a lawyer; or a Justice Court judge whose district lies in whole or in part in the municipality; or the mayor or mayor pro tempore of the city.

All judges, except those in Municipal Courts, are elected on partisan ballots. Municipal Court judges are appointed by the municipal governing body.

Supreme Court justices serve eight year terms. All other judges, except those in Municipal Courts, serve four year terms. The term of office for Municipal Court judges is locally determined.

THAD COCHRAN

Thad Cochran was born on December 7, 1937, in Pontotoc, Mississippi. He was educated in the public schools of Mississippi and received his B. A. degree and law degree, with honors, from the University of Mississippi.

He has been awarded honorary doctorate degrees from Kentucky Wesleyan College and Mississippi College. He served in the U. S. Navy and studied international law for a year at the University of Dublin, Ireland, under a Rotary Foundation Fellowship.

For seven years, Senator Cochran practiced law in Jackson. He was President of the Young Lawyers Section of the Mississippi State Bar, and in 1971 he was named one of three outstanding young men of the year in Mississippi.

In 1972 he was elected to the United States House of Representatives. He served three terms and received over 70 percent of the vote in both of his races for reelection to the House.

In 1978 he was elected to the United States Senate. Senator Cochran is the first Republican in over a century to be elected to statewide office in Mississippi. He was reelected in 1984 with over 60 percent of the vote.

Senator Cochran serves in the Senate as a member of the committees on Appropriations, Agriculture, and Labor and Human Resources. His experience in the Senate includes six years as Chairman of the subcommittee on appropriations for the Department of Agriculture. He also serves on subcommittees on defense appropriations, aging, transportation and energy. He helped write the Crime Control Act of 1984, the Farm Bill of 1985 and was the Senate author of the Farm Credit Amendments of 1986. He also wrote the Mississippi Wilderness Act which was the first bill to designate lands for perpetual protection in the state.

Thad Cochran became a member of the Senate leadership in 1985 when he was elected to serve as Secretary of the Senate Republican Conference.

He is married to the former Rose Clayton of New Albany, Mississippi, and they have two children, Clayton and Kate.

TRENT LOTT

Born on October 9, 1941, in Grenada County, Mississippi, Mr. Lott moved with his family to Pascagoula where his father was employed at Ingalls shipyard and his mother taught school.

He graduated from Pascagoula High School in 1959 and received his bachelor's degree in public administration from the University of Mississippi in 1963. After working as a field representative for the university, he earned his J.D. degree from the University of Mississippi School of Law in 1967.

Mr. Lott practiced law in Pascagoula before, in 1968, becoming administrative assistant to the late Congressman William M. Colmer. He was elected to the U.S. House of Representatives in 1972, and was re-elected five times by voters in Mississippi's Fifth District.

In his first term in Congress, Mr. Lott was named to the Judiciary Committee, later taking part in the historic impeachment proceedings. In 1975, he won appointment to the Rules Committee and served as ranking Republican on the Subcommittee on Legislative Process.

Dedication to his work on tax and budget reform earned praise from the Wall Street Journal, which said Mr. Lott has one of the "sharpest minds in the House." That same dedication is one reason he became, according to the Library of Congress, the only Member of Congress from a Southern state to be elected Republican Whip since the office was created in 1897. On November 8, 1988, Mr. Lott was elected to the U.S. Senate.

He is married to the former Tricia Thompson of Pascagoula, and the couple have two children, Chet and Tyler. Mr. Lott is a 32° Mason, Lodge #419 F.&A.M., Pascagoula, Mississippi; Scottish Rite Bodies, Gulfport, Mississippi; York Rite; Joppa Temple, Gulfport, Mississippi, charter class.

MIKE ESPY

Congressman Mike Espy won a landslide victory in his November 8, 1988 re-election to the Second Congressional District seat. Espy carried all of the 22 counties in his district and received 66 percent of the total vote.

Representing Mississippi's Second Congressional District, which covers most of the western half of the State and is one of the nation's poorest districts, Espy is the only member of the House Budget Committee who also serves on the Agriculture Committee. He is also a member of the Select Committee on Hunger and serves on four subcommittees of the Agriculture Committee: Subcommittee on Cotton, Rice, and Sugar, Subcommittee on Wheat, Soybeans, and Feed Grains, Subcommittee on Domestic Marketing, Consumer Relations, and Nutrition, and Subcommittee on Department Operations, Research, and Foreign Agriculture.

Espy was the only freshman member of Congress to pass a major piece of legislation, the Lower Mississippi River Valley Delta Development Act, which will be a blueprint for economic development in a seven-state area including Mississippi, Arkansas, and Louisiana. He also introduced and passed National Catfish Day which gained worldwide attention to the catfish industry. The catfish industry employs more than 17,000 people in the Second District.

Born November 30, 1953, in Yazoo City, Espy was the youngest Democratic House member in the 100th Congress.

Prior to his 52-48 percent defeat of a two-term Republican incumbent, Espy had never held elective office. However, he had served more than six years in state government.

After two years as managing attorney with Central Mississippi Legal Services, Espy served as an Assistant Secretary of State from 1980 to 1984. In that office, Espy headed the Division of Public Lands, which is responsible for managing over 660,000 acres of property set aside for educational funding.

From January 1984 until he resigned to begin his congressional campaign in November 1985, Espy served as an Assistant Attorney General. As chief of the Consumer Protection Division in that office, Espy helped return more than $2 million to victims of consumer fraud in 18 months.

A graduate of Howard University in Washington, D.C., with a degree in political science, and the University of Santa Clara Law School, in Santa Clara, Calif., Espy is married to the former Shelia Bell. They have a daughter, Jamilla, 9, and a son, Michael, 6.

He was appointed chairman of the Special House Committee on Southeast Asia in 1978 to conduct further efforts on behalf of the MIAs. He has made a total of 13 trips to Vietnam.

ELECTIONS

ELECTIONS

In Mississippi, every year is an election year. In years when no federal elections are held, Mississippi voters go to the polls to elect state, county, or city officials. Elections for all state offices and most county-level offices are held in years preceding presidential elections. Municipal elections are conducted in years following presidential elections. With this unique elections cycle, it is no wonder that voting is a topic of perpetual interest, excitement, and enthusiasm among Mississippians.

ELECTION LAW REFORM

Mississippi has made substantial progress in reforming its election laws to provide greater access to the electoral process. In 1986, a new election code was enacted by the Mississippi Legislature following recommendations of a Task Force sponsored by the Office of the Secretary of State. Extended poll hours, mandatory training for all election workers, mandatory use of voting machines and campaign finance disclosure by political action committees are only a few of the changes in the new law. A reorganized election code resulted in a more uniform administration of elections.

Presently under review are proposals to expand voter registration opportunities in the state. Mail-in registration, off-site registration and agency-based registration are several approaches under consideration. Also, the application of computer technology to assist in maintaining voter registration rolls is receiving more and more attention. Mississippi is moving ahead to maintain and improve its election laws which had been long neglected, and this will mean better elections for all the citizens of the state.

QUALIFICATIONS FOR REGISTRATION

(1) A United States citizen
(2) A resident of Mississippi
(3) 18 years of age or older
(4) Not an idiot or insane person
(5) Not convicted in a Mississippi court of murder, rape, bribery, theft, arson, obtaining money or goods under false pretense, perjury, forgery, embezzlement or bigamy, unless having been pardoned or had rights of citizenship restored by the Legislature.

PROCEDURE FOR REGISTRATION

An individual must register in person with the county registrar (Circuit Clerk) in the county in which the person resides, with any municipal clerk who is a deputy registrar in that county, or with the registrar or deputy registrar at a duly authorized satellite registration location. The registrar shall register applicants at any time during regular office hours. The registrar shall maintain the registration forms as a permanent record. Registration must be accomplished at least 30 days prior to any election in order to be eligible to vote in that election.
